

Compass Club of Colorado

Club Visitation & Cross-Club Engagement Policy

Rotary International encourages Rotarians to experience the richness of Rotary through fellowship and visitation with other clubs. Rotary's governing documents remind us to act with integrity, fairness, and respect for the health and autonomy of every club. This policy is written with a belief that open, curious conversations are at the heart of everything we do.

For Compass Club Members

The Compass Club is not a waiting room — it is a Rotary experience in its own right. The learning and fellowship you build with your fellow Compass Club members, and the district connections you develop along the way, are the foundation of everything that follows. We encourage you to embrace that journey fully. One year in the Compass Club offers a great foundation — and more time may be even more rewarding. The friendships and credibility you build along the way have a way of opening doors you did not even know to look for.

Rotary is a rich experience and there are many ways to explore it. Visiting clubs across the district is just one avenue — attending district events and connecting through Rotary Action Groups and Fellowships open equally rewarding doors. Let your curiosity lead you broadly — the wider you explore, the stronger your Rotary experiences becomes.

When you visit other clubs, show up as a genuine contributor. Every club invests real time and hospitality in welcoming visitors, and that generosity deserves to be honored. If you find yourself consistently drawn back to one particular club, that pull is worth a conversation. Your Compass Club Mentor can help you open that door with the club's president — not to rush a decision, but to make sure any relationship you build is grounded, mutual, and good for everyone involved.

When you find a club that feels like home, we will help you get there.

For Clubs Welcoming Compass Club Members

Thank you for opening your doors. We encourage our members to show up as genuine contributors — not just visitors — and to be respectful of your club's resources, culture, and community.

We also invite you to see Compass Club members as future colleagues. Welcoming them into your events, service projects, and socials is an investment in Rotary's future and in the kind of cross-club relationships that strengthen the entire district.

Every club operates independently, and we respect that fully. If a Compass Club member's visits to your club spark a question, we welcome that conversation and are glad to help facilitate it. We feel the best outcomes always begin with an open and curious exchange.
